The Thurstan studio's unfussy style is evident in the transformation of several properties on the Wiltshire estate of the Duke of Somerset, including the charming renovation of a 19th-century coaching inn, The Bradley Hare. Currently working on the family home and ducal seat, Bradley House, as well as The Zetter hotel in Bloomsbury, London WC1, an estate in Thirsk, North Yorkshire, a Georgian house in Dorset and a ranch in Wyoming, US, Mr Thurstan Waterworth expects to open a Wiltshire outpost of his studio later this year, as well as a capsule furniture collection. 'The pieces will be inspired by my favourite antiques, sourced over the years, each with a subtle, modern twist,' he reveals.
